

Haley Carter, E.I.

Environmental Specialist – ENERCON Services, Inc.

PANELIST

Environmental engineer specializing in stormwater system permitting and management. In my experience with Stormwater system design and compliance inspections, I have found that while having an easily maintainable system is preferred, it is not always realistic. Many systems are grandfathered in or inherently require more creative maintenance approaches. I pride myself on helping facility managers understand the compliance needs they are trying to meet in a manner they can easily relate to and come up with workable solutions. In addition to stormwater consulting, I also have general knowledge of indoor air quality and industrial hygiene, storage tank compliance and spill prevention control and countermeasure, and other industrial facility environmental compliance.